General Problems:

- Spelling: drips was spelled dripps, drippes, droops—and other ways, too. "Children's charity" was written "childrens cherity." Many students did not "think through" the question for a good understanding of what was being asked.
- The word "money" was used instead of "profit" on #6.
- Many students simply did not review all of their written answers to make sure that their writing was clear and was an example of their best grammar and spelling.
- There were problems in dropping necessary verbs. Without these verbs, the sentence was confusing.
